Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Sicut Patribus: And Other Verse Sicut Patribus A Poem read at the annual meeting of Tufts Chapter, Phi Beta Kappa, June 17, 1902 I. Not mine, not mine the hand to sweep the strings With note triumphal, on this hallowed day. I am no prophet to foretell smooth things, Or choose a nation s glory for my lay. The time for paeans is not yet, or past; Rather the shuddering call that strikes us dumb, When, unto consciences aroused at last, The mutterings of a grim tomorrow come. These be no times for lightsome song: The shadow of a mighty wrong Darkens the path before, Clings like a mist behind; We crouch, who stood of yore; We grope, who now are blind.
